in a state of insurrection; but even these The Era and ten thousand majority. Both branches of the legislature are largely Democratic, which secures the election of a Democrat to the United States Senate in the place of Abbott, whose term expires with only two of the seven Congressmen. This crushing defeat of the Republicans was most unexpected, as it was deemed certain refere the election that they would carry at least four Congressional districts, and no fears were entertained concerning the Legislature. Unlooked for by North Carolina, the Radicals placed too little consideration upon the white population, and At the South the white man is proverbially uncertain "and nigger is never sure," and the late election proves the North Carolina darkies are no exception to this rule. The white vote was fully cast and nearly solid for the Democratic ticket, but the Republicans appear to have been demoralized and failed to poll their entire vote. Governor Holden's administration is a decided failure; too much of the State legislation was for the benealt of a particular race, Instead of the people, and in every department affairs had become so muddled that change would be for the better. The Republican party will do well to heed the lesson taught by the North Carolina election. Unless it speedly cuts loose from the narrow-minded, corrupt, famstical the narrow-minded, corrupt, famstical eaders, which have brought it to the verge of ruin other radical States will as unexpectable man and political discussion, for us to express, what every fair-minded man must feel, detestation for such an attempt to convert the just execution of an assassin into a political discussion, and an attempt to convert the offerers who have call we man against the offerers who have Republican party will do well to heed the pectedly wheel into the democratic line and that party again be in the ascend-

A Berlin letter gives the following sketch of Prince Leopold, of Hohenzellern: "The Prince is an amiable man, without trace of pride on account of his name and royal descent. He and his two brothers Charles and Anthony, were strictly brought up by their father . They Prussian Guards, but, being always pasprussian Guards, but, being always passionately fond of scientific studies, philosophy and history, he devoted to these pursuits most of the leisure hours in Duseldorf, Berlin and Potsdam, which his brother officers spent in amusement. It is a characteristic of the Prince to treat every one with the greatest urbanity, no matter what his station in life may be, and his good nature is the more prepossessing because it is free from anything like affectation. Always polite towards ladies, he is passionately attached to his mother. The great wealth of the father permitted the sons to indulge in every sort of enjoyment, and yet they were remarkable for their simple style of living. All the members of their family are liberal in their political convictions.

Bayard Taylor says : "There is less interest now exhibited in literature and art, by the whole American people, than at any time within the last twenty years. Intellectual activity has diminished, taste has retrogaded, and the prospects of artists, authors, and publishers were never so dull as now. There are fewer renders of books, in proportion to population, than there were in 1855, and, with few exceptions, the works which attain the greatest circulation are of inferior literary character. Perhaps this is a late result of the Old Mr. Dent for that is what the neigh war; perhaps it is an intellectual demoralization, partly owing to the rise of shod-dy and the predominance of the reatless, speculative element in all branchs. dy and the predominance of the restless, speculative element in all branches of speculative element in all branches of chairs a piano and a carved whatnot business. The New York Standard indignantly says: "Nothing could be more offensive than the shape news items, so called, often take. Here is a line—"Susan B. Anthony lost $10,000 in the Revolution"—going the rounds of the press without a word of explanation. The line is founded on a strong and womanly letter published some time ago in the Standard; a letter which showed how severe a struggle Mrs. Anthony endured in establishing the Woman's organ, how little sympathy she received from the professed friends of the cause among women, and how heroically she is laboring to cancel a debt created in behalf of the women of America. WHAT GRANT THINKS. The Great American Brother-in-Law Unbosoms Himself to a Reporter.

rrespondence of the New York Sun. ] Your correspondent had an hour's interview with the President last evening. Without betraying anything touched upon of a private nature, we give the Presi-dent's opinion on national and cosmopolitan subjects as given in the conversation.

We found him in the bosom of his little family at Long Branch cottage. He was surrounded by Mrs. Grant, who is stouter than when we saw her a General's wife. Gen. Porter, slim, and with Kearney-like face, sweet little Nellie Grant and old Mr. Dent, the venerable father of Mrs. Grant bors call him; stands under the weight of bluff in front. The executive showed no reticence, but carried on the triangular conversation with another gentlemen and myself with ease and rapidity, as each

After complimentary speeches, the conversation changed upon the war, and we asked the President what he thought of Political. - The following is the of- a truce at Hampton Roads, in 1862-an truce at Hampton Roads, in 1862—an extensia policy to unite everybody on. England knew what Stephens cateinsic policy meant, for Seward's dispatch made them open their eyes wide. It meant North and South join againt Canada. It took diplomacy to get this extensia idea out of Stephens and Jeff; so it took diplomacy to get the French signature to the treaty which would enable Napoleon to gobble up Saarbruck and Landeau, and reastore Luxumburg to the French. But it took greater diplomacy to reject it. Bismarck did it, and he now hands the remarks did it, and he now hands the remarks the section of the property of the Alabama Pirates we sold out cheap. England had no acts of paliament against buying, and she possessed herself of our ships at half price. Now is the time for us to get even by buying the ships of France and Prussia. This is what I wanted engress to do.

But many of our congressmen know nothing of shipping; they are farmers and lawyers, and the idea did not strike them with force before adjour ment. Now they see it. I get letters every day filled with regrets that we did not fit this thing marks to understance the sum of the ships of France and Prussia.

But many of our congressmen know nothing of shipping; they are farmers and lawyers, and the idea did not strike them with force before adjour ment. Now they see it. I get letters every day filled with regrets that we did not fit this thing took greater dipionacy to reject it. Bis-marck did it, and he now hands the re-jected proposition over to the other powers as Seward handed over Stephens Canada policy to England. The deat of King William is the squelehing of Belgixm. San Correspondent—When King Wil-Ham came to Paris in '67, the Paris morning papers announced his arrival thus: "Bismarck, attended by the King of Prus-

Gen. Grant—Well, that's about right. Bismarck is the big gun; he will be the "Swamp Angel" in the rear of the Prus-San Correspondent-Americans gener-lly sympathize with Prussia? Gen. Grant-Yes; I don't know but what we do. Our sympathy is the result of commerce, German emigration, and because the Germans took our bonds and stood with us during our war. France didn't. King William and Bismarck sent three telegrams of congratulation to us. Not one came from Napoleon, who, on the contrary, was all the time hitting us sly dabs in Mexico. Seward let him hit, because his army was all the time eating up the beef and tanning the hides which otherwise would have gotten into the rebel army. In fact, Maximilian was a part of a provision destroyer in Mexico. sort of a provision destroyer in Mexico. If we go back of the last war, there is no reason why we shouldn't sympathize with France. Napoleon sent troops, and Lay-fayettee came to help us, while Frederick the Great hired out a host of Hessians to Great Brittan.

Sun Correspondent-And if you go now written in clumsy German, "Sacred to the memory of 8,000 braves who died in the American war." What do you think of the capture of Saarbrurk, General?

Gen. Grant—Little skirmishes and a reconnoissance now and then don't amount to anything. We must wait for the cam-paign. Sometimes in checkers a man gives away one man, and by and by takes three. So in war. Then Saarbruck don't seem to have been a German town. It was like the rebels first taking Bowling Green, Ky., or Ltitle Rock. It rather belonged to them: but when Gen. Steele re-took Little Rock, that was a victory I think.

MAYENCE WILL BE THE PREDERICKSBURG of the war, and may be the Black Forest will be the Wilderness. At least I should think that modern warfare had demonstrated the fact that it is foolish to assault a fortified town when you can just as well march around it and compel the attacked party to starve or come out and fight you. Gen. Hooker and Gen. Burnside both stormed Fredericksburg, but I think if they had to do it over again, you would see them marching right around to the rear. Mayence, Coblentz, and even Ehrenbreit-enstein, the Gibraltar of the Rhine, if managed at all, will have to be managed as Fredericksburg was at last. You can't storm Ehrenbreitenstein any more than you could Vicksburg from the Lousiana flats. You can bombard it, but when taken it will have to be starved out. Now I don't think these French fellows are much on the starve-out process; they're too fast, and here

PRUSSIA HAS THE INSIDE TRACK. Sun correspondent-What will be the probable strategy of the Prussian army? General Grant—It will undoubtedly remain strictly on the defensive. The Prussians are now where the Austrians were during the last war. They will find defending themselves against the French far different from conquering Austria. The victory of Koniggratz' was won with out a Prussian quartermasters department without even a base of supplies. They started, tike General Pope, with headquar-ters and hinoquarters in the saddle. This strategy is only safe with victory. It would have been as disasterous with King William at Koniggratz as it was with Gen. Pope at Centreville had be met with repulse. The Austrian campaign was successful, but it would not do for King William to fight the French army in this way. He must stand still—intrenent, and the French must dig him out or work in the rear. Spades will be trumps again, as at Vicksburg. There is a striking analogy between the French and Prussian armies, Prussia's strategy should be to a still. If she takes the aggressive stand still. If she takes the aggressive penetrating French territory, the same rebult will undoubtedly await her that awaited Lee in Pennsylvania, Gettysburg and Antietam both weakened the reliels more than years of defense war-fare, Coniggratz will not be repeated dur-

New correspondent-What will be the effect of the war on this country? Gen. Grant—History will repeat itself. Our war raised values, not only here, but all over the world. People couldn't live in Europe after, one nor one half as cheap The present war will raise values in Europe. Americans will come vance there. Then we can compete with them without a tariff.

The war will be a self imposed high tariff, imposed on every article of foreign importation. This war and here the Gen. was outhusiastic (will be the greatest bless was cuthus instic (will be the greatest blessing that could be afforded to America. It will raise Europe up to an equilibrium of prices and labor. Our factories will start again. Importations will cease. They will no longer be able to make a coat cheaper in Europe than in this country. Our breadstuffs and become will have to furnish their quarter master's department indiscrets. quartermaster's department indirectly Pork will advance, and general farm produce will bring corresponding high figures if the war lasts, as I now think it will. Our bonds will come home at first, but they will be quickly absorbed. They are safe, and foreigners are even now making large deposits in American banks. Many are coming back but few want to realize on them, no matter how the war turns out st home.

Sun Correspondent-How about our merchant marine—our shipping?

Gen Grant-Here we have made a great, a suicidal mistake. Before congress adjourned we ought to have madearrange-ments for the purchase of foreign vessels. They are in the market now at cheap fig-ures, but we can't buy them. The old act efcongress provides for the building of ships at home, but prohibits their purchase from a foreign power. from a foreign power. By an act of con-gress we can't buy a vessell which we once different is this from the cold and heartless story conveyed by the words we have quoted."

Sun Correspondent—Has Gen. Sheridan gone to Europe on an official mission? Gen. Grant—Not at all. Gen. Sheridan is on a leave of absence. He is under no is on a leave of absence. He is under no orders; he can go where he likes, to Patagonia if he wants to. It's all bosh about his joining the French army. He told me socially that he was going straight to Prussia, and being naturally interested in the army business he thought, if the Prussian commander had no objection, that he would like to see something of their military habits and customs. I shan't believe Phil, will go in till I hear Early has some artillery for him in toms. I shan't believe Phil. will go in till I hear Early has some artillery for him in front. Early you know, was the General's best friend during the war. He always kept him in artillery! (Here the General looked humorous) Here Secretary Fish came in, and your correspondent withdrew with a firm conviction that the President can talk when he wants to, and that he has an enlarged and comprehensive knowledge of almost all subjects. He goes to St. Louis on the 8th, to be gone two weeks, leaving Mrs. Grant here. leaving Mrs. Grant here.
